

Anthropology and Cross-Cultural Mental Health:

The Major Questions for Future Research and Practice

Prof. Dr. Arthur Kleinman

(Harvard University,
Department of Anthropology)

June 28th, 2011, 7.00 p.m.

The lecture reviews the current state of global mental health, cultural psychiatry and psychiatric anthropology. Emphasis is given to what anthropology contributes through new ethnographic understandings of culture (both of lay populations and biomedicine) and cultural competence; of diasporic and homeland populations; of migration; of psychiatric categories and practices; of values, local and global; and of global health implementation.
